INDEX.

Aberdeenshire, reports from, 100, 233, 351, 489.
Agricultural meeting at Holkham, 384.
Agricultural publications, review of, 78, 222, 338, 472.
Agricultural intelligence, 99, 231, 349, 487.
Agriculture, review of Sir John Sinclair's Code of, 78—of Richardson's Essay on, 346.
Air and water, food for animals and vegetables, 407.
America, notices regarding emigration to, 211—'A year's residence in,' by Mr Cobbett, 472.
Animals and vegetables, water and air the food of, 407.
Annandale, Upper, reports from, 233, 352.
Arran, remarks on a tour through, 6—its extent, &c. ib.—general aspect, soil, and climate, 7—crops, 8—live stock, 9—rental, 11—implements, schools, poor, farms, leases, ib.—game and wild animals, 12.
Assembly, General, report to Parliament by the, regarding the management of the poor in Scotland, 326, 452.
Ayrshire, reports from, 101, 234, 354, 489.
Banffshire, reports from, 102, 235, 355, 491.
Banks for savings in Scotland, 457.
Bernard, Sir Thomas, extracts from his work on the use of salt for cattle-feeding and manure, 202.
Berwickshire, reports from, 103, 236, 356, 491.
Biographical notices of the late Alexander Low, Esq. of Whitsom-Laws, 390.
Birkbeck, Morris, review of his journey through America, and his opinions regarding emigration, 211—of his 'Letters from Illinois,' 338.
Blaikie, Mr, his method of converting arable into pasture land, 395—letter from, on the preparation of oyster shells for manure, 403—on the management of farm-yard manure in Norfolk, 459.
Bright, Dr, his account of the condition of the peasantry, and state of husbandry in Lower Hungary, 291.
Britain, remarks on the deterioration of the climate of, 72—of its causes, 73.
Buckinghamshire, reports from, 124, 376.
Burnt clay, on the expense of obtaining, and its value as manure, 278.
Canal, utility of a proposed one between Forfar and Arbroath, defended, 12.
Capital and profits of farmers, on the, 332.
Carse of Falkirk, farm-management in the, 50.
Carse of Gowrie, experiment in saving clover-seeds in the, 405.
Cattle and sheep, salt useful in feeding, 200, 417.
Climate, on the deterioration of that of Britain, 72—opinion of its cause, 73—inquiry into the notion of its deterioration, 313—no sensible increase or diminution of heat for 30 years past, 316—nor will any take place for a century to come, 318—general causes which regulate the heat of, ib.

Clover, red, on the culture of, 62.

Clover-seed, advantages of growing and saving it in Scotland, 265—mode of managing it in the field, and after being cut, 270—experiment tried and attended with success, 405.

Clover and Ryegrass, growing crops of, decided not to belong to the heirs of a liferent tenant, 285.

Cobbett, William, on America, 472.

Code of Agriculture, Sir J. Sinclair's, review of, 78.

Coke, Mr, proceedings at his agricultural meeting at Holkham, 384—letter of Sir J. Sinclair to, on the subject of drilling, 388—experiments on his grounds, in converting arable into pasture land, 395.

Colling, Robert, high prices paid for his short-horned cattle, 488.

Coppice-woods, management of, in Ireland, 300.

Corn, mark by which that which is frosted may be distinguished from sound, 145—average prices of, 100, 232, 350, 488.

Corn-mill, portable one, 290.

Cottages, on the best mode of improving the healthfulness of, 40.

Crows, their usefulness in destroying the grub, 38—cursory hints on, 157—verdict of guilty against them, 189.

Cumberland, letter from, 259—report from, 377, 510.

Curwen, Mr, review of his Observations on the State of Ireland, 222.

Davy, Sir Humphry, on his opinion respecting the effects of the exportation of grain on the soil of a country, 27—defence of his opinion, 162—remarks on the question, 298, 444.

Decision respecting a growing crop of clover and ryegrass at the death of a liferent tenant, 285.

Delving and trenching, employment of labourers in, recommended, 58.

Dempster, the late George, Esq. of Dunnichen, memoir of, 133—his epitaph, written by himself, 141—epigram by, ib.

Drilling, letter from Sir J. Sinclair on the subject of, 388.

Dumfries-shire, reports from, 105, 239, 358, 493.

Emigration to America, notices regarding, 211.

England, on farm-management in the west of, 442.

Experiments made with the grain of crop 1817, to ascertain its fitness for seed, 144, 280—new one, for checking the ravages of the grub, 336—on rape-cake dust used as a manure, 402.

Exportation of produce, Sir H. Davy's opinion that it tends to impoverish soil, questioned, 27—defence of his opinion, 162—remarks on the question, 298.

Falkirk, on farm-management in the Carse of, 50.

Farmers have in general a smaller return for labour and capital than any other class, 332—disadvantage of their not being within the pale of the bankrupt law, 334.

Fellenberg, M. de, his establishment for agriculture and education in Switzerland, 51, 194, 308, 433.
Fences, law of Scotland regarding those erected by tenants, 185.
Fiars, mode of striking them in East-Lothian, 158—considered to be equitable in principle, 159—defence of the Jury appointed to strike them in Lanarkshire, 177.
Fifeshire, reports from, 106, 240, 359, 494.
Fire, law respecting the destruction of the houses of tenants of land by, 65
Forfar, utility of the proposed canal there defended, 12.
Forfarshire, reports from, 241, 360, 495.
Friendly Societies in Scotland, 456.
Frosted potatoes, method of restoring them, 1—produce as good starch, and in as great quantity as sound ones, 4.
Frosted grain, mark to distinguish it from sound, 145.
Game laws of Scotland, review of Ness's treatise on the, 91.
Glasgow, letters from, 107, 243, 361, 496.
Gloucestershire, indebted to Scotsmen for its improvements in corn-farming, 442.
Grain, on Sir H. Davy's opinion that its exportation exhausts the soil on which it grows, 27, 162, 298, 444—importations of, into Liverpool, 128, 261—experiments made with the crop of 1817, to ascertain its fitness for seed, 144, 280—how that which is frosted may be distinguished from sound grain, 145—on the various measures used for, in Scotland, 432—on the winnowing of, 465.
Grub, crows useful for destroying the, 38—new experiments for checking the ravages of the, 336.
Headrick, the Rev. Mr, questions Sir H. Davy's opinion, that exporting grain tends to impoverish the soil, 27—reply to Mr H.'s remarks, 162—remarks on the controversy, 298—answer to Pol-Œconomicus Redivivus's remarks on the question, 444—conceives high rents to be the greatest improvement in modern agriculture, 304.
Healthfulness of cottages, best mode of improving the, 40.
Highways of England and Wales, expense of, 458.
Hofwyl, M. de Fellenberg's establishments there, for cultivating the soil and educating the poor, 51, 194, 308, 433.
Holkham, agricultural meeting there, 384—method adopted there for converting arable into pasture land, by transplanting turf, 395—Dr Rigby on the agriculture of, 478.
Howison, Dr James, experiments by, on the restoration of frosted potatoes, 1—on water and air, as food for animals and vegetables, 407.
Hungary, Lower, state of the peasantry, 291—granaries, 293—rotation of crops, 294—sheep and cattle, ib.—price of sheep, 297—the dairy, ib.
Husbandry, state of, in Lower Hungary, 291.
Indian corn, account of, 473.
Inoculation of potatoes, experiments in the, 71—strictures on, 192.
Inverness-shire, reports from, 108, 244, 362, 497.

Ireland, review of Curwen's observations on the state of, 222—mode of managing coppice-woods in, 300.
Kincardineshire, reports from, 109, 246, 364, 499.
Kirkcudbright, reports from, 111, 248, 366, 500.
Labourers, their employment in delving and trenching recommended, 58.
Lanark, defence of the Jury appointed to fix the fiars of 1816, against the accusations of a committee of landholders, 177.
Lanarkshire, reports from, 112, 366, 501.
Lancashire, letters from, 125, 259, 378, 510.
Land-rents, high ones the greatest improvement in modern times, 304.
Langholm, letters from, 114, 248, 368, 502.
Liferent tenant, his heirs not entitled to crops of clover growing at the time of his death, 285.
Live-stock, remarks on, 16.
Liverpool, letters from, 126, 260, 378, 512—importations of grain into, 128, 261, 380, 513.
Longevity, an epigram, 141.
Lothian, East, reports from, 115, 249, 368, 503.
——— Mid, reports from, 116, 251, 370.
——— West, reports from, 117, 252, 371, 505.
Low, Alexander, Esq. of Whitsom-Laws, biographical notices of, 390.
Malthus, Mr, on his inquiry into the rent of land, 18.
Manure, hint on the use of salt-water for, 77—queries regarding the application of rape-cake for, 168—answer to the queries, 276—on the use of salt for, 200, 417—on the value of burnt clay for, and expense of obtaining it, 278—experiments on rape-cake used as, 402—on the preparation of oyster-shells for, 403—management of, in Norfolk, 459.
Measures, on the various ones used in Scotland for grain, 432.
Memoirs of the late George Dempster, Esq. of Dunnichen, 133.
Morayshire, reports from, 117, 253, 372, 506.
Ness, Mr, review of his treatise on the Game Laws, 91.
Norfolk, reports from, 128, 262, 380, 514.
Northumberland, harvests in, from 1795 to 1817 inclusive, 57—reports from, 129, 263, 381, 514.
Nottinghamshire, reports from, 130, 263, 382, 515.
Oyster-shells, improvement in the preparation of, for manure, 403.
Parkinson, J., on the winnowing of grain, 465.
Pasture obtained by the transplanting of turf, 393.
Paupers, difference in the proportionate numbers of, in England and Scotland, 453—receive, individually, double the sum in the former, that they do in the latter country, ib.
Peasantry, condition of, in Lower Hungary, 291.
Perthshire, reports from, 122, 253, 372, 506.
Planting of trees, remarks on, 16.
——— of willows recommended, 65.

Pol-Œconomicus Redivivus, on the question, Whether exportation of land produce tends to impoverish the soil, 162—answer to his observations, 444.

Poor, on the management of the, in Scotland, 325—church collections, 329—voluntary contributions by heritors, ib.—assessments, 33—expense of management, ib.—occasional contributions, ib.—number of poor, 331—expense of maintenance, ib.—begging, ib.—appeal to the Sheriff, 332—comparison of the number of, in England and Scotland, and the sums paid to them, 453—education, 454—advantages of Friendly Societies, 456.

Portable corn-mill, 290.

Potatoes, experiments in restoring frosted ones, 1—equally fit for starch in a frosted as in a sound state, 4—experiments on the inoculation of, 71—strictures on the experiments, 192.

Profits of farmers less than that of merchants or manufacturers, 332.

Queries regarding the application of rape-cake as manure, 168—answer to the queries, 276.

Railways, memorial to the Magistrates of Edinburgh respecting, 169.

Rape-cake, queries respecting its application as manure, 168—answer to the queries, 276—experiments on the use of the dust of, as manure, 402.

Red clover, on the culture of, 62.

Rent of land, remarks on Malthus's inquiry into the, 18—necessarily forms part of the price of its produce, 19—regulated by the same laws which govern the profits of stock, or interest of money, 26—high rent, the greatest improvement in modern times, 304.

Review of Sir J. Sinclair's code of agriculture, 78—of Ness's treatise on the Game Laws of Scotland, 91—of Curwen's Observations on the State of Ireland, 222—of Birkbeck's Letters from Illinois, 338—of Dr Richardson's Essay on Agriculture, 346—of William Cobbett's Year's Residence in America, 472—of Holkham, its agriculture, &c. by Edward Rigby, M. D. 478.

Richardson, Dr William, review of his Essay on Agriculture, 346.

Rintoul, Alexander, on the profits of growing and saving clover seeds, and its management in the field, &c. 265.

Ross-shire, reports from, 118, 255, 373, 508.

Rust in wheat, means of preventing, 412.

Salt, on the use of, for manure, and in feeding cattle and sheep, 200, 417—extracts from Sir T. Bernard's publication on the subject, 202—from a Parliamentary Committee's Report on, 417—useful in preventing rust in wheat, 412.

Salt-water, hint of its use as manure, 77.

Scotland, review of a treatise on the Game Laws of, 91—on the management of the poor in, 325—on saving of clover seeds in, 265, 405—on the various grain measures used in, 482.

Seed, experiment on the fitness of corn for, crop 1817, 144.

Seeds, clover, advantages derived from the culture of, 265—rules for growing and saving, 270—successful experiment in saving, 405.
Sheep, on providing shelter for, in mountainous districts, 468.
Simson, General, prices paid for his short-horned cattle, 488.
Sinclair, Sir John, review of his Code of Agriculture, 78—letter from, on the subject of drilling, 388—on preventing rust in wheat, 412.
Starch, produced from frosted potatoes, 4.
Stirlingshire, reports from, 119, 256, 374.
Stobs Castle, notice of improvements at, 176.
Switzerland, establishment there, for the improvement of agriculture, and the education of the poor, 51, 194, 303, 433.
Tenants of land, law regarding the destruction of their houses by accidental fire, 65—law regarding fences erected by, 185.
Trees, remarks on the planting of, 16.
Trenching and delving, employment of labourers in, recommended, 58.
Turf, practice of transplanting it adopted in England, 393—account of Mr Blaikie's experiments at Holkham, 395—advantages of the plan, 400.
Tweeddale, reports from, 121, 258, 375, 508.
Vegetables and animals, water and air directly forming the food of, 407.
Vegetation, the principal medium through which water and air are decomposed, 410.
Verdict of guilty against crows, by a Fifeshire ploughman, 189.
Water and air, food for animals and vegetables, 407—vegetation the principal medium through which they are decomposed, 410.
Weather, remarks on the state of, during 1816 and 1817, 280.
West of England, on farm-management there, 442.
Wheat, means of preventing rust in, 412.
Wilkie, Mathew, Esq., notice of his death, 516.
Willows, planting of them recommended, 65.
Wiltshire, report from, 131.
Woods and woodlands, remarks on, 300.

END OF VOLUME NINETEENTH.

No. LXXVII. will be published on the first Monday of February.

D. Willison, printer, Edinburgh.